Item 2.05 Costs Associated with Exit or Disposal Activities.

On June 6, 2024, Delta Apparel, Inc. (the “Company”) committed to a plan to formally suspend its manufacturing operations in Honduras due to ongoing liquidity challenges. This plan follows the wind-down of the Company’s manufacturing operations in Mexico earlier this year, and the Company’s strategic decision to no longer emphasize Delta Activewear’s Global Brands channel, as previously disclosed. The Company continues to seek to sell its El Salvador manufacturing operations servicing that channel, as previously disclosed.

The suspension of the Company’s manufacturing operations in Honduras is expected to impact approximately 2,413 employees and is expected to remain in effect for at least 120 days as the Company explores strategic initiatives involving its offshore manufacturing operations, which may include a sale or a permanent wind-down of all such operations. The Company expects to finalize its plan regarding its offshore manufacturing operations and substantially complete its implementation within 120 days. The final costs and cash expenditures relating to such plan will not be known until all related activities have been completed. The Company expects to incur (i) restructuring charges attributable to net cash payments primarily for employee-related benefits, the amount of which will depend in part on the duration of the suspension of operations, (ii) potential facility closure costs, and (iii) other restructuring costs and future cash expenditures, the amounts of which the Company is currently unable to estimate at the time of this Current Report on Form 8-K (“Report”). Such restructuring charges are expected to be incurred beginning in the third quarter of fiscal year 2024.

The costs and charges described above are subject to a number of assumptions and risks, and actual results may differ materially from such estimates. The Company may also incur other charges, costs, future cash expenditures or impairments not currently contemplated due to events that may occur as a result of, or in connection with, the above-referenced plan.

As previously disclosed in its Quarterly Report on Form 10-Q filed with the SEC on May 9, 2024, the Company has been keenly focused on evaluating its business strategies and managing its working capital and costs in light of significant market, operational and liquidity challenges, including, among others:

- the Company’s deteriorating liquidity position, including its limited cash and cash equivalents and its inability to date to raise additional capital or otherwise obtain necessary liquidity to have sufficient resources to fund its operations, which continues to prevent it from purchasing all of the yarn, dyes, chemicals and other production inputs required to supply its manufacturing facilities and allow them to run at the levels required to meet its business plans;
- significant reductions in demand across certain of the Company’s business units during fiscal year 2023 and the beginning of fiscal year 2024, which has impacted the Company’s operating results and financial position; and
- the Company’s continued non-compliance with certain covenants in its U.S. asset-based revolving credit facility, which constitutes a breach of that agreement and an event of default that remains uncured at the time of this Report.

The plan to suspend the Company’s manufacturing operations in Honduras was commenced as a result of the ongoing liquidity challenges discussed above, among other factors. The Company’s deteriorating liquidity position and lack of funding has continued to prevent it from purchasing raw materials necessary to operate its offshore manufacturing facilities and to pay compensation and benefits due to offshore employees. As previously disclosed, the Company also continues to explore the potential sale of its Salt Life business and continues to evaluate all strategic options and alternatives with its legal and financial advisors.

Cautionary Note Regarding Forward-Looking Statements

This Current Report on Form 8-K contains forward-looking statements including, but not limited to, statements related to the terms and conditions of the plan to suspend its manufacturing operations in Honduras, the number of employees affected by such plan, the restructuring costs expected to be incurred in connection with such plan, the cash expenditures expected to be incurred in connection with such plan, the expected timing of recognition of the charges associated with such plan, and statements related to the Company’s attempt to sell certain of its assets. These forward-looking statements are based on management’s beliefs and assumptions and on information available to management as of the date they are made. However, investors should not place undue reliance on any such forward-looking statements because they speak only as of the date they are made. The Company does not undertake any obligation to update or revise any forward-looking statements, whether as a result of new information, future events or otherwise, except as required by law. In addition, forward-looking statements are subject to certain risks and uncertainties that could cause actual results, events and developments to differ materially from the Company’s historical experience and its present expectations or projections. These risks and uncertainties include, but are not necessarily limited to, those described in the Company’s filings with the Securities and Exchange Commission.
